code meaning

Code rendered obsolete, it has been substituted by code EP P EL1.

The provisionally protection in accordance with art. 67(1),(2) of the EPC is not effective in France until the translation of the claims has been made available to the INPI and whether published in the B.O.P.I. or communicated to the person using the invention in France. There is no time limit to submit the translation of the claims.

According to the provision of art. 70(3)(4) EPC, the applicant or proprietor of the patent has the right to file a corrected translation of the European application or European patent in the event the application or patent in the language of the translation confers a narrower protection than that in the language of the proceedings. The corrected translation will be regarded as authentic (except for revocation proceedings).

This code referred to the submitting to the INPI of a corrected translation of the claims, event which was advertised in the B.O.P.I. under the above-mentioned heading adding an asterisk before the EP publication number.
