EPOscript Volume 5 is the first in-depth study of the core procedural principles governing the proceedings before the EPO, covering essential procedural safeguards – such as the right to be heard, the right of appeal, the rule against bias – as well as the fundamental rules defining the roles of the EPO and the parties to proceedings – scope of ex officio examination, principle of party disposition. Guidance on key practical issues, such as oral proceedings and late-filed submissions, is provided through detailed analysis of the underlying procedural principles. Throughout the book, special emphasis is placed on the case law of the EPO Boards of Appeal, and their power to create law is made evident especially when filling the gaps in the procedural rules under the EPC and when relying on concepts such as the principle of good faith.

This ground breaking work devoted to the procedural aspects of European patent law will make essential reading for anyone wishing to grasp how basic procedural principles are applied to grant, opposition and appeal proceedings in the EPO.
